No injuries in weekend incident

High school ceiling collapses

By Andrew Milne

A section of ceiling in a science lab at the high school fell in last weekend.

Administration sources speculate that had the incident occurred while the lab was occupied, there could well have been some injury.

The lab is out of use pending repairs, complicating an already difficult overcrowding situation at the school.

The school was scheduled to undergo a major upgrade — which would have added lab space — this year. That upgrade, however, is on hold due to the province's moratorium on capital projects by school boards.

The material that fell — a type of gypsum board coated with a thick layer of dense plaster — is quite heavy. Its impact seriously damaged student desks immediately beneath the collapsed portion. Material also appears to have ricocheted after falling, damaging another desk across the room.

Said board director Brad Saunders, "We are indeed very, very fortunate that there were no students in the classroom at the time."

Saunders says an architect who examined the damage last week suggested that the material fell due simply to its weight. The possibility of water damage adding to the ceiling's weight has not been ruled out as a contributing factor, however.

An engineer is expected to study the building in greater detail today or at least early this week.

Administration sources estimated last week that the lab would in all probability not be back in use until after Christmas.

The loss of the lab, says high school principal Gary Brohman, is making things difficult.

Says Brohman, "It's going to become complicated, in that it's a science lab. That's the hard part. A classroom is bad enough, but when we lose a science lab, and we were already short, it becomes a fact that other teachers have to give up their time to accommodate everybody. It's becoming a real team effort."

Plans for long awaited renovations to the school called for the addition of five new science labs — replacing the small, antiquated existing facilities — in work to be started this year.

Brohman says the school is getting around the difficulty as best it can for now by swapping classes through the existing labs halfway through periods — with teachers doing theory lessons in regular classrooms, then moving them to the labs for the practical work.

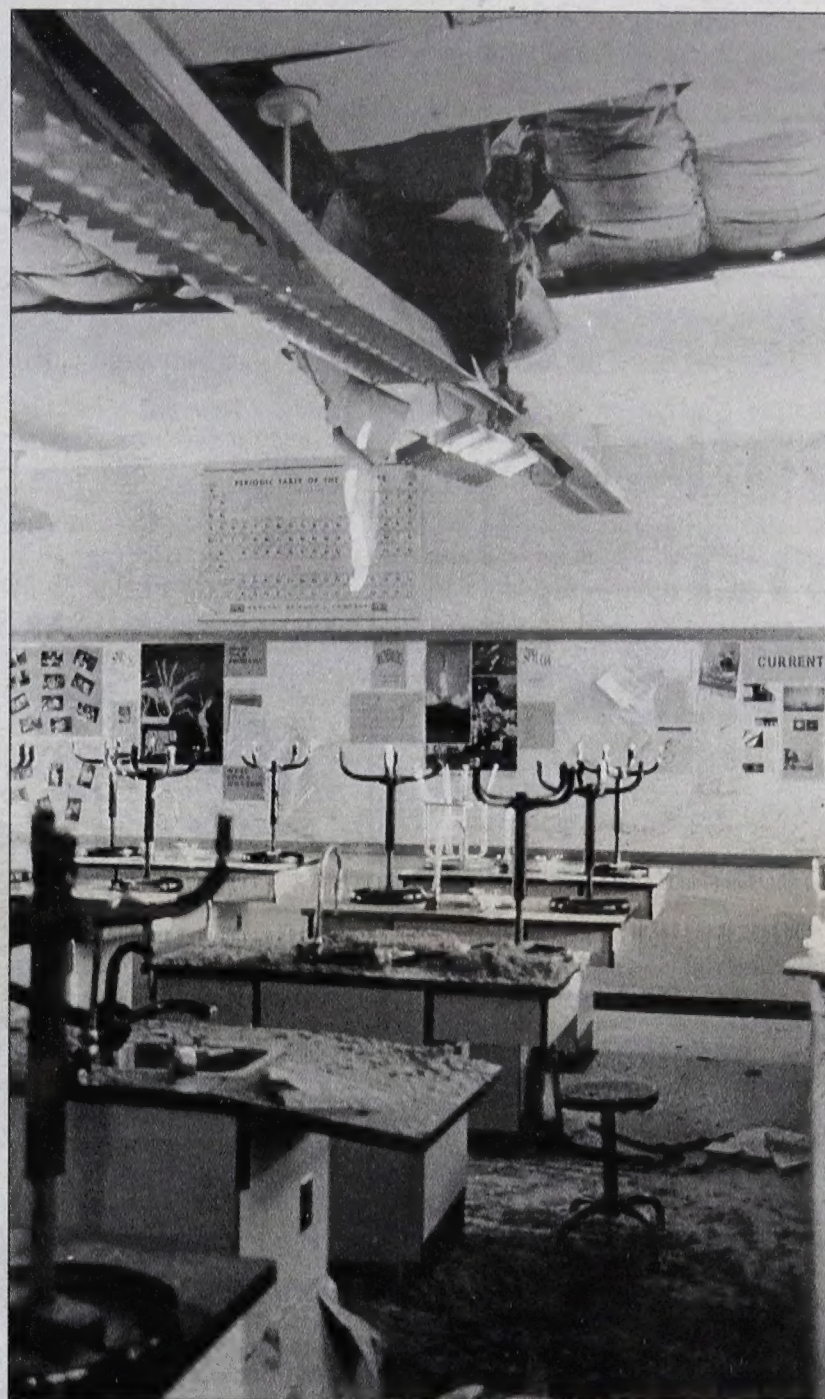

Said Brohman, "The frustrating part is the moratorium. The frustrating part is all the uncertainty with Mr. Snobelen's talk about education. This is one more thing. Our school needs more room."

Danger to students?

There were eight other classrooms at the high school built at the same time, and these are still in use. Saunders says the architect has examined them, and does not believe there is significant danger in their use for the short term. However, in light of last weekend's collapse, the board will be taking preventative measures, he says.

Says Saunders, "I suppose anyone in the engineer's position is reluctant to say there is

Industry Canada funding sought

County supports internet access project

by Jerry Grozelle

A presentation by the Haliburton County Development Corporation (HCDC) regarding Internet access and training met with the approval of County Council last week.

HCDC manager Andy Campbell and Brent Court, program consultant with Industry Canada, attended the county council meeting in Minden Wednesday to explain the Community Access Program (CAP).

Through the program, the HCDC hopes to set up at least five stations within Haliburton County where county residents could learn how to access the Internet.

Industry Canada is providing funding dollar for dollar raised locally to provide access sites for rural residents.

Campbell pointed out that receiving approval for a CAP grant is a competitive process. There is no guarantee that the Haliburton County proposal will be accepted. Only about one third of the applications submitted last year were approved.

Campbell said the average local cost per site has been $15,000 of those which have been approved. The HCDC proposal would provide a minimum of five sites for a local share of $19,970. That amount is available, but Campbell has asked the county to consider contributing $10,000 during its 1997 budget deliberations. The county was also asked to provide a letter of support for the HCDC application.

Campbell said he is hopeful that the fact the HCDC proposal would provide a minimum of five sites for less than $20,000 will convince Industry Canada to look favourably on the local application.

During the presentation, Brent Court took council on a tour of the Internet via a notebook computer connection, which was projected onto a screen. He accessed the Huntsville and Bruce County home pages, among others.

If the project comes to fruition, people who take advantage of the training will be asked to volunteer time helping others learn to navigate the Internet.

Court explained that companies in Haliburton, for example, could have links to various home pages within the county, resulting in enquiries for their products and services through e-mail (electronic mail) from anywhere in the world.

"The future is going to be heavily reliant on Internet access," council was told.

Campbell said a home page could be designed, offering links to any business or organization that wants one.

Two sites have already been offered in Haliburton,

AH&M council questions pier fees

By Andrew Milne

The Anson, Hindon and Minden government will be protesting to the government of Canada over increases in pier rental fees.

Council moved at its last meeting not to pay a bill received for pier fees, pending inquiries as to the reasons for the increased cost.

The fees charged for the Minden pier, until this year, were $100 per annum. The federal government has increased them to $500. They have also reduced the contract length from five years to one, a move councillors seemed to feel might be intended to leave the way open for additional increases in the near future.

The piers are formally federal government property, since the federal government has jurisdiction over waterways, but are rented by municipalities.

"Five hundred dollars a year seems like an awful lot," said reeve Jeanne Anthon. "I find it hard to believe it could cost that much to maintain them. I also notice there's no explanation on the bill to justify the increase. I feel it's partly the principle here — we're not just going to say oh, all right, and pay the bill. I'd like at least to know why they're doing this."

Councillor Jerry Rome said he believes he has heard of protests over the issue from other townships farther downstream on the Trent waterway. "I believe for some of them this is a real problem," he said. "I think we should ask around. Maybe we could all get together on this."

Resort still operating

Receivers called in at PineStone

By Andrew Milne

A receiver has been placed in control of the PineStone.

The resort, however, is still fully operational, as announced in a news release from general manager Andy Frappier last week.

Says board president Don Crowe, "It's not in receivership. The receivers are there, and they froze the bank account, but everything's open. The bank wants to keep it open as long as they can."

The current manager and accountant are also still working, as are all staff, said Crowe.

Crowe says the resort's difficulties began with payment on a line of credit it was unable to honour at the end of October.

The resort's taxes are also in arrears, and shortly after the default, says Crowe, the bank began negotiating to sell the mortgage, and notified the board, but the deal fell through.

Crowe told The Times the resort has had a good year, and the difficulties are more due to an initial lack of adequate capitalization.

Says Crowe, "It was undercapitalized right from the start. When we went into it we set a goal, and said if we didn't reach it, we wouldn't go in. Then we didn't reach it, and went in anyway. We were optimistic about it, but actually 1996 was the best year we've had. I've just looked at the figures, and October was a fabulous month. But there's a big debt load there all the time. When you're undercapitalized, you're always paying too much interest."

Crowe says the resort is working at finding financing to resolve the problem, and he is optimistic they may still be able to do so.

"Maybe," he said, "by the middle of next week I'll have changed my mind, but I'm optimistic right now."

Paul Heffer named Citizen of the Year

Minden pharmacist Paul Heffer has been named Citizen of the Year by the Rotary Club of Minden.

The presentation was made November 18 at a special meeting of the service club held at the Red Umbrella Inn.

The award came as a complete surprise to Heffer who said, after the presentation, that he was honoured to have been chosen for the award. "I couldn't have been involved in so many activities without the support from my wife Janet, our family and the staff at the store," he commented.

The Citizen of the Year honour was presented by Rotarian Bill Roszell. He enumerated the many reasons Heffer was chosen for the Rotary award this year. Roszell noted Heffer has been:

- A member of the Haliburton, Kawartha Pine Ridge District Health Council for four years.

- An original member of the former Acting Health Services Board, (now the Haliburton Highlands Health Services Board). He has served as chairman of the group, seeing it through some of its most turbulent times. Paul continues to be an active member of the board.

- A member of the Community Committee for Physicians, assisting in the recruitment and retention of family physicians in the Minden area.

- An active member of the Minden Scouting organization, Paul served as a Beaver leader for three years, with a similar term as a Cub leader. He is currently the treasurer for the Minden District.

- Involved in his church, serving as an usher and an Eucharistic Minister.

- A former member of the Minden Kinsmen and Rotary clubs.

Roszell noted that in addition to his many community contributions, most people will be familiar with Paul as the man behind the prescription counter at the Minden IDA Drug Store. "It is there that we have all seen him going out of his way to help someone, explaining medications, clarifying doctor's instructions or just being helpful and caring. When he is not consulting with customers you'll most often find Paul behind the counter, with his eyes on a computer screen and a phone glued to his ear."

Minden Rotary Club's Citizen of the Year Paul Heffer is presented with a plaque to mark the honour by club president Barry Cray. Paul's wife Janet and presenter Bill Roszell, right, were on hand for the award.

Roszell related a personal incident which occurred 12 years ago when he and his wife Betty were at what was then their cottage. Her supply of vital medication had become low. They went to see Paul. "We were virtual strangers, but after hearing the circumstance he gave her enough pills to get her through. Thanks Paul...a real relief."

The selection of Paul Heffer as Rotary Club Citizen of the Year was greeted with an enthusiastic response from members. He was presented with a plaque to mark the occasion.

Warden Fearrey sums up a year in office

Murray Fearrey is near the end of his term as warden of Haliburton County. He was honoured for his service to the county at the Warden's Banquet, held at the Haliburton Legion recently.

In his address, Fearrey started by thanking the county staff members, "who met the tough challenges of 1996."

He said that 1996 and 1997 have, and will, mark complete departures from the past for department heads.

"I know it is difficult and I appreciate the support council and I have had from most departments.

Fearrey also expresses his appreciation to Ross Rigney and Les Shepherd, both of whom have served in the capacity of chief administrative officer of the county during the past year. He noted that Shepherd has "doubled up on his responsibilities and has been most co-operative."

The fact that the county was able to hold the line on services and taxes, in spite of provincial cuts, was gratifying to the warden.

"Together, we did what had to be done in all departments," he said. "I believe our cost cutting in administration, especially council committee meetings, was positive.

Fearrey also views the move to have the operation of Hyland Crest taken over by Extencare as a positive cost-saving measure.

On the issue of police coverage of the county, Fearrey said, "We are continuing constant dialogue to restore the OPP detachment to Minden and Haliburton County.

Hospital services are also a top priority in Haliburton County.

"We are pushing and supporting Hugh Nichol, chairman, and Foster Loucks, chief executive officer, of the Health Services Board, to be ready to tender for the hospital projects early in 1997.

"I want to thank MPP Chris Hodgson and his staff for their support on many of these issues."

Speaking of the restructuring process, Fearrey said, "In 1996, Haliburton County embarked on a restructuring exercise which has included a prospectus and visioning exercises. From the outset, I committed us to look at every possible alternative or option for our taxpayers.

Haliburton County is one of the largest geographic counties in the province, with a permanent population of 14,000 and a seasonal population of 100,000. It is the distance from Markham to Burlington in width.

"My vision of Haliburton County is to provide and share our services beyond Minden and Haliburton, the two largest communities where some would have the service stop, simply because the population is centered there. It is imperative to include and preserve the peripheral municipalities as part of the whole.

"I would like to say that the municipalities in this county stack up very well against most in the province for accountability and fiscal responsibility."

He added that the efficient, responsible municipalities are being tarred with the same brush as those which are not so efficient or responsible.

"We must accept the changes coming and the future they will bring," he said.

Fearrey admitted that there have been foul-ups in the past, and there will be mistakes made in the future. But, he said that it would be a bigger mistake to sit back and do nothing in the face of changes which are inevitable. He added that a do-nothing attitude would paralyze the county.

"I believe in county government," he said. "I believe certain functions clearly belong at the county level, such as social services, county planning, county roads administration, police protection, waste management co-ordination and fire co-ordination. I further think that we are embarking on a unique analysis of the operations of Haliburton County and its municipalities, to be conducted by David Barber. This analysis will offer yet another option and opportunity. It may well be that this study will reveal that we may have to swallow some bitter medicine to stay alive.

"Maybe we can equip ourselves for the changes that are coming by sharing services or more contracting out. And October was about average. Some pleasant days and weekends and some very soggy. The rainfall was much less than last October even though we had heavy rains on October 18 and 30. The average temperature 7.3 C (45.1 F) was down from last October, 9.1 C (48.3 F). There were seven mornings with heavy frost bringing an end to the flowers and gardens for another year.

Difficulties expected in financing ceiling repairs

no risk. I asked if there was any immediate risk for the students using those other rooms, and his answer was that in his best judgement no... We will however as a safety precaution be putting some long term repairs into those other rooms in any event. That will involve restrapping and reattaching the ceiling."

Board chair Wendy Ladurantaye, asked whether any water damage had occurred since the construction of the school's new roof, said she hadn't heard that this was the case.

Said Ladurantaye, "No, not as far as I know. I know there was a lot of leaking before, but as far as I've heard it solved that."

Said Saunders, "In the architect's mind the problem seemed to be one of the weight of the ceiling being more than the original installation could handle. He's not sure whether there's been any water damage from the past 44 years. Over that 44 years we've had a number of roofs in there."

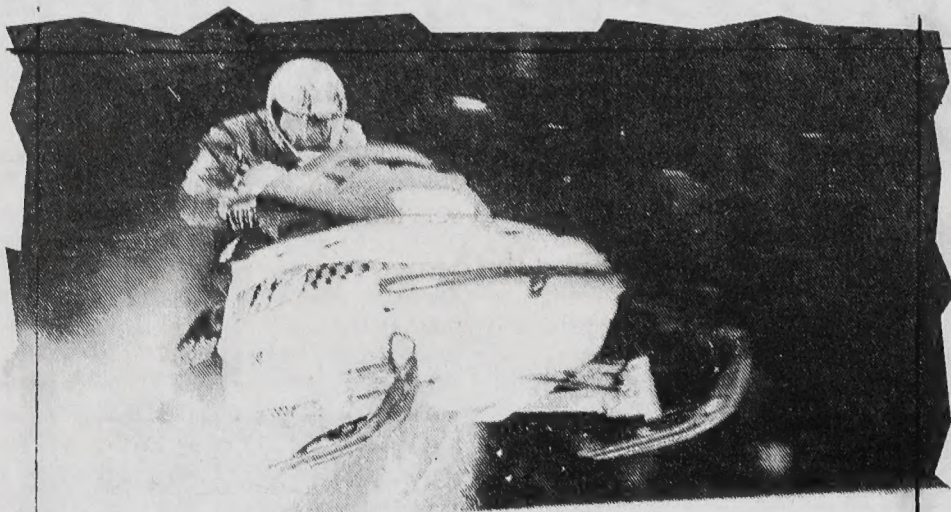

"This really is," said Ladurantaye, "one of those times though that I find myself really wishing the province would free up the money so we could get on with construction..."

We had leaky roof problems, other problems at Archie Stouffer for years, and we were able to address all those problems when we were renovating. We might well have been able to do that here."

With respect to the cost of the repairs, Ladurantaye says she isn't quite yet sure how the board is going to meet them. It's early yet to say what those costs will be, and they're waiting for word from the engineer before they'll really have any idea. In any case, she says, it seems likely it isn't going to be easy. The board has made significant cuts to maintenance dollars in recent budgets, due to financial pressures, and that doesn't leave much for contingencies.

Says Ladurantaye, "I think it's a lot like a household budget. We can budget for ourselves, and think we've got everything covered. Then something extraordinary happens, and we have to face it, say okay, this isn't realistic. I'm not sure how the board is going to handle this. There are no doubt a few options, but it's unlikely any of them are going to be easy."

The evolution of the 'R' word

Editorial

If there is one word that causes shivers to run down the backs of public employees, most local politicians and just about anyone involved in the delivery of a public service, it is restructuring. The 'R' word has taken on a magical aura all its own that sends some diving for the shelter of bunkers and others rubbing their hands with glee.

Human nature has always been cautious about the impact of change. Many see it as an impending evil that is destined to sweep away everything in its path. The process of restructuring is nothing more than the evolutionary process that occurs naturally, only at a more frenetic pace. Change that is allowed to follow an evolutionary course usually moves at a slower pace, a pace that increases the comfort level and buy-in from those who are affected by the process.

The restructuring that is currently being called for in almost all sectors of provincial and municipal government is being carried out at a speed and intensity that is uncomfortable for those caught in the process or even for those who are mere observers. Likewise, the buy-in to this ideologically-driven process is not readily available. There is no middle ground. It is either a matter of blind faith or total rejection.

Another unfortunate aspect of the current process is that it leaves so little time for careful evaluation. The result is knee-jerk reactions, further confusion and uncertainty. There are few who would deny the need for an evaluation of the services delivered by our governments. However, as the process bull-dozes ahead, and citizens learn how deep and far-reaching the changes will be, there is an increasing desire for greater assessment of the final outcomes before implementing change for the sake of change.

That reaction is beginning to surface provincially in the areas of health care and education. Locally, that may explain why the drive for municipal government restructuring has taken a sudden turn into the slow lane. The 'R' word may in fact be evolving into reduce, re-evaluate and reconsider.

Designation effort avoiding the spotlight

Editor:

In recent weeks, the Trent-Severn Waterway has announced its intention to seek a nomination as a Heritage River under the Canadian Heritage River System. To some, this effort may seem worthwhile, even desirable, but before buying into this notion, we should ask: Why? Are there measurable benefits to be had if we do this? What are they and what proof do we have these benefits will occur?

Answers begin to appear when one realizes that Canada signed a United Nations treaty some years ago called the World Heritage Treaty. The Trent-Severn Waterway is following virtually the same procedure as outlined by UNESCO, the agency that administers the World Heritage Treaty. The first step is nomination; the second, designation and the establishment of a management plan and the building of a bureaucratic structure.

UNESCO's procedures recommend that the effort to nominate a heritage site should not receive undue media attention. The UNESCO document also suggests the nomination be accomplished quietly. UNESCO also says that the entire nomination and designation process must be completed by the State Party (Canada) and essentially be in place, prior to submitting to the UN an offi-

Working together, we can put litter in its place

Editor:

After reading Bruce Doige's letter last week, it was encouraging to know that there is someone else who is just as concerned about the amount of litter strewn around town. Wouldn't it be wonderful if all of us were just as concerned?

Within one hour one day while walking our dog, we actually picked up 16 bags of litter between the Dominion Hotel parking lot and Archie Stouffer Elementary School.

We frequently pick up three or four bags. Unfortunately, the town has removed the newer garbage cans, for the winter we suppose, so there is less incentive to bend and pick up after other people.

We live in a beautiful community—but the litter is embarrassing—and if all stores and property owners/managers would sweep the sidewalks and gutters - we would most assuredly send a message that we are proud to be Mindenites. Please, look around your property every day and see it as if you were seeing your store/property for the first time. Would you welcome guests to your home with cigarette packs, milk cartons, beer bottles etc., lying about all over the place? We don't want your garbage on the ground or in the flowerboxes. This is our Hometown and it's EVERYONE'S responsibility to keep it beautiful. Please, show a little pride!

Off-season meetings limit cottage in-put cial request for designation.

How can cottagers be expected to be aware of this massive land grab when the public meetings are held while they are at their winter homes? Add to this fact that the decision to nominate or not will be made in January, long before the cottagers return. Cottagers will be completely unaware of both the designation and the implications that flow from this decision.

The media in Bobcaygeon were notified about the public meeting on October 29. The public meeting had already been held....on October 28. This ensured minimal media follow-up, though one local paper did attend and practically fell over itself in praise of the initiative. So much for responsible inquiry.

The writer is given to understand no legislation exists that would allow the federal government or the province to nominate the Trent-Severn Waterway. How could this be? If nomination is approved, the next step will be designation as a Heritage River. Following a favourable decision to designate, the waterway will set the next phase of the project in motion, a management plan and a bureaucratic structure.

While no one has seen any management plan as yet, it could be huge. Logically, it could extend to the edge of the watershed. Even the Haliburton Highlands may see restrictive federal development limits imposed. The federal plan will be similar to an official plan. You can bet it will impose development limits. These limits would overlay the existing official plans presently in place along the length of the waterway. Since the planning process is reserved for the provinces, any such move by the feds is also viewed as unconstitutional.

Politicians and the public alike should be asking some tough questions about Trent-Severn's intentions. Waterway officials say the federal heritage designation will encourage tourism. On what set of facts or assumptions can they make this unfounded and unsupported claim? Traffic has been down in the last two or three years due to economic conditions and higher locking fees. Designation will, if anything, curtail tourism. It will affect boat owners, marinas and property owners within the area of the management plan.

It is foolish to believe that new federal planning restrictions could be seen as a benefit of designation.

At this point, it is important to understand, there is no 'smoking gun', no clear signal to indicate the waterway will be designated under international law. The UNESCO document though, says, in effect, there should be no clear signal, no 'smoking gun'. In any event, if the nomination passes, we will surely have designation as a federal HHSS student reporter Sue Carr takes a closer look at what people are wearing on and in their bodies.

This guy I know recently came to school with a new addition to his face.

The earring pierces his chin, just under his lower lip, and although it took some getting used to, the majority of his peers have come to accept it as looking "cool".

A few years ago, it was considered rebellious for a male to have his ear pierced, but now, it's almost expected. One of the most popular teenage trends is also one of the oldest forms of body decoration. Body piercing.

The very mention of this phrase sends grandparents running for the safety of their homes, but after the initial shock wears off, a small hole in one's body can actually look...nice.

The most common places to get an earring right now are the nose, the belly-button, and the eyebrow. More and more people are getting their lip, tongue, and chin pierced, and the brave, no-pain-no-gain types are paying piercing-gun-wielding strangers to decorate their necks, nipples, and well, as they say on TV...all of their 2000 body parts.

Once considered taboo, body piercing is now widely accepted in the work place. Proof of this new attitude is available for all to see in Yorkville, where several business people can be seen hurriedly walking down the street dressed in three-piece Armani suits, with a silver stud in their eyebrow.

Ripping the door off the powder room

Don't you just love to ponder The Great Mysteries? Like, is there life on other planets? Is there life after death? What does Stonehenge really mean? What are the lyrics to those songs the Great Whales sing?

And women's washrooms. What the hell are women doing in those washrooms?

Here's a scenario, chum: you and your lady are out for dinner at a restaurant with another couple—let's say they're good friends of yours. The food is fine, the service is dandy, the conversation around the table sparkles and shines. After dessert, the coffee is served and inevitably one of the two women at the table excuses herself to 'visit the powder room'.

And immediately—immediately—the other woman rises, saying "I'll come with you."

And off they go! Together! To the washroom!

To the male mind it is an utter bafflement. The very last thing a man wants to do is to share the bathroom experience with anyone, much less another male.

We guys are all business in there. In and out. No lollygagging. The chat, if any, is kept to an absolute minimum and is confined to the shallow end of the conversational pool.

"You see that football game last night?"
"Brutal."

That's an articulate conversation for a male washroom. Actually, guys get uncomfortable and vaguely suspicious anytime discourse-at-the-urinals gets beyond primal grunts or manly chuckles.

Women, as has been noted in other contexts, are different.

And thanks to a Canadian filmmaker named Ann Kennard, we menfolk are beginning to realize just how different.

The National Film Board recently released a documentary by Ms. Kennard entitled The Powder Room. To make that documentary, she spent two years in women's washrooms around the world with her microphones open and her cameras running.

Now if you tried that in a men's washroom, the clientele would have kept everything zipped up—including their lips. But in The Powder Room, the women waiting to use the cubicles dribble like leaky faucets.

They talk about everything—the pain of childbirth, the hell of dieting, the knuckleheadedness of their men—and they do it spontaneously, without a shred of self-consciousness.

Kennard hits a real cross-section. There are aging Jewish yentas discussing bygone loves and goofy gangs of teenage girls taking a break from a high school prom.

Kennard takes us through the hallowed portals marked "Women" on several continents and through various cultures. We visit a honky-tonk toilet in West Texas; a trendy loo in a Manhattan night club; a graffiti-pocked washroom in a Toronto high school and a swanky sauna in suburban Copenhagen.

And we learn that women, God bless 'em, have turned a humdrum, slightly uncomfortable biological routine into a meaningful opportunity to connect with other women.

But the irony is, men are to thank for it.

Male architects to be precise. The guys who design multimillion dollar buildings but neglect to provide adequate facilities for half the human race that uses those buildings. "They're the ones responsible for putting in too few stalls," says Kennard "thus making for long lineups and much talk."

It's tough to admit, but I have to say that as a man I feel jealous. I realize after seeing Ann Kennard's film that women have managed to turn their Powder Room into a forum. Thanks to macho stupidity male washrooms will never follow suit.

You'll never see men's rest rooms become a meeting ground of peers.

Or should that be pee-ers?

Those who are interested in being a part of this latest fashion trend should look for a parlour that uses sterilized guns, employs trained professionals who will teach the freshly pierced patron how to care for their new accessory, to avoid infection.

Body piercing, aside from occasionally creating some nasty infections, can also be hazardous to the wallet. Piercings range from $20 to $300, depending on where you go to get decorated, and where you want your earring to shine.

To all of those daring teens out there who have the guts to get pierced, be sure to remind your parents that it's not permanent (unlike the tattoo that you're hoping to get as well). At least, that's what I plan on telling my mom, if I ever end up coming home with a hoop in my nose.

Nomination should be stopped

Heritage River and big government planning controls that go with it. Today, Trent-Severn officials can rightfully say there is no intention to seek the international designation, but what about tomorrow?

The point to this: Do we need or want international intrusion in our affairs? Do we want more bureaucratic controls on our planning process? Do we understand that designations will have the effect of removing the right to own, use and dispose of private property without government interference?

To guard against any intrusion by either federal and/or foreign governments we should demand that the nomination process be stopped now. Property owners along the length of the Waterway from Georgian Bay to Trenton won't want to put up with arbitrary planning decisions and radical practises used by another UN/Ontario Heritage area run by the United Nations and the Niagara Escarpment Commission.

This is merely big government extending its coercive bureaucratic control with a new twist---toss in the potential for unwarranted international interference in our domestic affairs. This must not be allowed to happen.

Redmen defeat two Peterborough teams

by Jerry Grozelle

Ten goals in two games added up to two wins for the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School Redmen hockey team last week in Kawartha High School Hockey League play.

The Redmen skated to a 7-2 victory over Peterborough Collegiate at the Haliburton arena last Wednesday. Although PCVS is a first-year team in the league, coach Ron Yake said the Redmen didn't take the opposition lightly.

"It was a good, solid team effort," Yake said.

The Redmen proved that every player on the team can be dangerous to the opposition, with a couple of defencemen getting in on the scoring.

"The defense played well, allowing only two goals," Yake said.

PCVS got on the scoreboard first, with 3:51 remaining in the first period.

Less than two minutes later, Dan Jordan notched the equalizer, with assists going to Bill Dovell and Dennis Woods.

The Redmen scored five unanswered goals in the middle frame, putting the game out of reach. Mark Hughes netted two goals, with Chris Moynes, Darren Mills and Andrew McKelvey adding one apiece. Matt Burk picked up three assists in the second period. Hughes, Jeff Wray, Ryan Anderson, McKelvey, Moynes and Josh Dennis helped set up one each.

Each team scored once in the third. Jeff Wray was the Haliburton marksman, from Mills.

Redmen 3, Rams 1

The Redmen travelled to Peterborough to tangle with the Kenner Rams at the Kinsmen arena. The Haliburton team improved its record to three wins, one loss and one tie with a 3-1 win over Kenner.

Ken Ablett opened the scoring for the Redmen six minutes into the game. Dennis Woods picked up an assist. Before the first period was over, Ablett scored another goal to give the Redmen a 2-0 advantage. Bill Dovell and Nick Kulas assisted.

Mark Hughes padded the Haliburton lead with the lone goal of the second frame. Dan Jordan drew an assist on that one.

Kenner got one back in the third period, but that was as close as the Rams would get.

Yake said he is impressed with the improvement he's seen since the start of

We are the lucky ones who are working this year! There are many families who aren't as lucky. We can all make a difference.

The Haliburton County Home Builders' Association

Would like to challenge every organization, company, or group who are having Christmas parties this season. Participate in this challenge by bringing an unwrapped gift or food gift certificate to their respective parties. Once your gathering is over we will pick up these gifts and get them to the distribution centres in Minden and Haliburton. Each company contributing is asked to fill in a ballot for a draw which will be made on December 23rd, and will also ask which area you would like to have your box delivered to. The prize will be an 8 x 10 booth at the Home Builders' Home, Cottage and Recreation Show in May. The booth space may be used by the winner or can be donated to a charitable organization for their use.

Gifts are needed for all ages of children from 6 to 16. Filling a stocking for a young person can also be rewarding. Food gift certificates are available at area grocery stores.

Minden Seniors Curling ClubOde to a Fun Day Spiel

by Dave McAdam

On November 17 'twas a fun day we had,
Senior curlers were there dressed in pink, blue and red.
The first two draw winners were Bishop and Milford,
The prizes for the draw were capons and Hereford.

Ebby's team of Ruby Henderson, Morris Duff and Bob Bullen
Where whirling and curling, for first place were pull'in.
And Bill with Vice Ursula, Muriel Green and Dave Ross
Were intent on establishing just who was the boss.

The Second Place team put up quite a show
Though for hogging their rocks the horn they did blow.
But for Skip Codlin and Vice Hewitt, Frank and Jean their first names,
Together with Robson and Taylor, two eyed Jacks of some fame
Shared honour and glory with Hal Burton and pawns
Who consisted of Edith Burch, his Vice who was drawn
And Muriel McIntosh with Dan Abel
Front end lead and second I believe was their label.

The teams which scored third on this really great day
Curl'd well enough to be sure they would stay
In contention for prizes of very nice meat
And proved to some others they were a problem to beat.

In draw one, Third Place was Tom Hurtta you see,
Who, if it were known, would not hurt a flea.
But his teammates of Gilmore, Hamilton and Blears
Curl'd up such a storm, driving their opponents to tears.

And as for the Spencley girl, a skip known as Doe,
Together with teammates put on quite a show,
Jack Taylor, Rheta Jones and Marj Windover for sure
Were certainly no pushover for their opponents to endure.
Their second draw third place finish
Enabled them prizes of steaks so delicious
And some of them later helped out with the dishes.

When it came time for the mourners
To curl rock to the corners,
Because in the games they had failed to curl well,
It was Bob Wiltshire and Wynn Taylor
Who curled without failure
Their rocks to the house and the closest in measure.

And chickens their prizes of similar sizes
The winners went home with smiles and much mirth
While losers declared they would surely unearth
The joker who pebbled with ashes and lime
That caused all their shots to fall short of the line.

So much for the curling, the in turns and outs,
The pot luck dinner enlisted such shouts
Super food was served up and there's certainly no doubts
That Todd Grainger and crew had greatly excelled
In planning this Fun Day and making it meld
Into one day of pleasure that we all beheld.

Odd Couple in Haliburton next week

Olive Madison (Debra Dart), right, and Florence Unger (Cathy Cox) have words, in the Highlands Little Theatre's production of Neil Simon's The Odd Couple — the female version. HLT's version is directed by Heather Scully. The Odd Couple is a light situational comedy, built around the prickly relationship of two very different people trying to get along as roommates. The production played last week in Minden, and will be in Haliburton this coming weekend (November 28-30), at the high school. Tickets for Friday and Saturday are $10, and can be purchased at Paulette's Gifts in Haliburton. Tickets can be reserved by phone. The Thursday performance is a preview, at which seniors and students will be admitted for half price. Curtain is 7:30 pm all nights.

County official plan urged maybe that won't be enough."

Regarding the "who does what panel", Fearrey said he has several questions. He doesn't believe the panel will answer all of them.

"In 1996, I felt as though I was leading a football team that was struggling to develop a game plan, but the official rules were in the making and subject to change."

Looking ahead, Fearrey said, "1997 will be even more challenging than 1996. It will be decision time. Market value assessment and its impact on seasonal residential properties may be a devastating blow."

A further challenge, he says, will be to reduce reliance on government grants, while maintaining a level of service that is necessary and affordable. He added that the county should get started with a strategic plan in 1997, followed by a county official plan.

Of the challenges faced, Fearrey says none is greater than the need for social cohesion.

"Based on the best scouting reports available, our team is trying to prepare the best offence and the best defence we can muster, amongst all the change.

"I will bet on Haliburton County to win and survive."

In closing, Fearrey said, "Through my years in county and municipal politics I have gotten to know this county very well. Haliburton County has been a good place to live, raise a family and do business. I hope in some small way, I am giving something back."

and both have the hardware in place, which would be made available. One is Sir Sandford Fleming College and the other is the Outreach Centre in Haliburton's Stedman Mall.

"We won't actually have to run out and buy five computers," Campbell said.

Several locations in Minden are being considered and Campbell said there is a possibility of two sites here. The plan is to set up a site for six months in Wilberforce and then move it to Gooderham. A similar arrangement would be made between West Guilford and Carnarvon.

School Council report

Lots of energy evident at Archie Stouffer

What an energetic place Archie Stouffer provides for the children of our community!

•We were granted approval by the school board for the initiation of a Breakfast Club which we hope to have rolling by mid January. Anyone interested in volunteering in food preparation etc., please call Carol at 286-1921.

•the Snowsuit Program is a success, although we could use some additional gloves and hats.

In spite of negative press reports recently regarding the state of education in Ontario, wonderful things continue to happen at Archie Stouffer. Mrs. Berry's Pen pals program, which connects her grade 5 students with seniors at Hyland Crest is featured in a just-published book written for teachers. As well, other programs described in the book such as Primary Partners, which connects students in grades one and eight and Flat Stanley, which puts grade three students in touch with other students around the world, are already in place at our school.

Our primary play area is much more peaceful since our Peace Mediation Program started last spring and students help other students learn through our Peer Helpers program. Each one of these helps to make Archie Stouffer a good place to be.

Our next meeting is January 8, at 7 p.m.

Merry Christmas from everyone at the Archie Stouffer Elementary School Council

Dealing with litter box problems

by Kimberley Joyce DVM

To the cat, the litter-box is a complex piece of domestication often taken for granted. Urination and defecation are important forms of communication amongst cats. Urine odour is the 'fingerprint' identity of an individual cat, its territory, and its reproductive status. Consider "inappropriate" elimination as a feline call for help. Problems in the home occur when cats are confronted by unfavourable conditions. By simply following the three Rules of litter-box, you can prevent most household 'accidents':

■More Boxes: The number of litter-boxes in the household should be equal to the number of cats in that household plus one. (For example, if you have two cats you should have three litter-boxes.) Keep the locations private and accessible.

■Cleanliness: The litter-box should be cleaned frequently, at least twice a day. Use a mild soap to clean the litter box and rinse extremely well. Beware of hooded litter-boxes which can conceal noxious fumes.

■Litter Choice: Fine litter should be used and it should be a gentle and natural formulation. Avoid strong scents at the litter-box. Scented litters often overwhelm and repel cats. Whatever litter you choose, don't change brands!

When a cat fails to use the litter-box, consider many possible causes. Any painful or frightening experience at the litter-box can permanently change a cat's perspective. A cat will quickly resort to an alternative or 'inappropriate' behaviour. Common medical ailments such as urinary tract infections, constipation, diarrhoea, and arthritis can convince a cat that the litter-box is a dangerous place. For the older or debilitated cat, keep the litter-box nearby. Stairs and tall pans can become difficult obstacles. Please contact your veterinarian if you suspect a medical problem.

Environmental stress can be a cause of 'inappropriate' elimination by cats. Anything new to the environment can trigger an episode. Some cats may require anti-anxiety medication for a brief period. Neutering is highly recommended to relieve sexual tensions. Never punish a cat for "inappropriate" urination. Punishment will only heighten the cat's anxiety and worsen the problem. To correct the situation, you must determine and treat the cause. Recall and enforce the rules of the litterbox.

Cleaning the soiled area promptly and properly is necessary for success. The slightest smell of urine or faeces can trigger the cat to repeat the offense. Avoid ammonia based cleaning products which can smell like urine. Apply diluted Dettol (1 part Dettol mixed in 4 parts water) to clean hard surfaces.

Reapply every 4 days for a month. If the cat has eliminated on carpet or upholstered furniture, apply a small amount of mothball crystals (1/4 teaspoon) to the cleaned area. Apply the smallest amount possible such that you cannot smell the mothballs. Your cat will notice and avoid the site. Reapply the crystals every 5-7 days.

'Inappropriate' elimination is the number one reason why cats are abandoned. Please call your veterinarian if you have any questions or concerns regarding this problem. More information is available upon request.

Tricks to tracing your family tree

by June Partridge

The end of the year is quickly approaching and I have started to think about what I have accomplished in my genealogy search. I know that there are some new babies to add to the family tree and there have been several deaths in the family as well for me to record. I didn't have to look hard to find these details. Where I did further my search was by being ready to listen to relatives, at the funerals and birth celebrations, as they talked about memories.

Linking names past and present often creates a definite trail. When finding similar last names in a census of land record, if the first names are Andrew and Stephen or Peter, often an incorrect line search can be eliminated by recalling that several Peters but no Andrew or Stephen have shown up earlier. Always note where these names are found and keep that record on file in case a link is discovered later. Remembering later just what records were searched can be difficult. The other clues to use when looking at the names I have just mentioned is that one may also determine the possible origin of a person from his name. When searching for someone of Scottish lineage, for example, keep the file for Andrew and Stephen open in your research handbook.

At a funeral, take a look around the cemetery for headstones bearing the same name as the person who has just been interred. Many people have their last resting place with or near other family members. In cemeteries where there are old stones or flat stones in the ground, it may be difficult to read the information. The cemetery keeps a record of who is buried in each plot. A search of these records will often reveal there are more family members buried in the family plot than initial investigation indicated. Recently, I discovered that family members can share a single plot. The ownership of a plot can be passed on. Of course there are papers to submit and a fee to pay. If a headstone is already in place, the next person would have a flat stone at the foot of the existing grave depending on the rules of the cemetery.

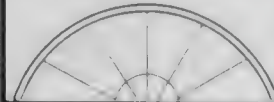

The other interesting fact that I have discovered recently concerns wills. This is a favourite place to find names or number of children of ancestors. The Ontario Provincial Archives will usually have the will on file if the person has died in this province. When the will cannot be found it doesn't always mean it doesn't exist. It could mean that a will did not go into probate because of the size of the estate. Many financial instruments name a beneficiary, are in joint names, or list "and or survivor."

Let's go back now to the births in the family I mentioned at the beginning. Often children's names may include the first or second name of one or two grandparents. Even a last name can be used in the name of a new child in the family. Baptism records often will identify an aunt or uncle of the child as godparent. Church records can be used also for marriage or death listings.

So, did I further my research this year? Yes, but not always in the manner that I would have liked.

On November 27, the genealogy group will hold a "Show & Tell" night. Members and interested individuals are invited to bring items such as a medal, a Bible, a unique ring or plaque or crest which has a story connected to it. Perhaps it helped the owner further family research, solved a mystery in the family or created a further questioning of the records thought to be complete. Join us at the Minden Library at 7 p.m. on Wednesday or come early at 6 p.m. to do research in our genealogy resource mobile cart, while the executive hold its meeting before the program.

The members of St. Paul's Friendship Club are very happy to have Ken Rowden back in the fold. Despite a long absence, he was able to take the most lone hand category in euchre last week. Other winners were Iris Taylor and Verna McDonald with the high scores and Ann Richmond with the low score. Verna also won the 50-50 draw. Join in fellowship and fun at their euchre parties every Monday at 1:30 p.m.

Winners of the euchre games held at Club 35 last week were Grace Cowen and June Branning with the high scores and Merv Bunker with the most lone hands. Edith Russell and Murray Daniels were also winners while special awards were given to Helen Henderson, Barb Robitaille and Garth Windsor. June Branning won the 50-50 draw. Everyone is welcome to join in the euchre games every Monday at 7:30 p.m. No partners needed. Club 35 is located 9 km north of Carnarvon.

The Canadian Cancer Society is hoping to re-establish a board of directors in Haliburton County. A meeting has been called for December 4 and anyone wishing to contribute to this effort is invited to attend. The meeting will be held at the Haliburton Community Funeral Home, Highway 118, north of the Village of Haliburton on December 4 at 1 p.m. If you would like more information call 1-800-463-0432.

Contract bridge winners from the Stanhope Library last week were first Marion Irwin, second Jim Irwin and third Dorothy Strype. One small slam was bid and made by Betty Culley and Russ Fair. Join them every Tuesday at 1:00 p.m. Partners are not required.

I'm getting to think that the only thing seniors do at the Minden Legion every Tuesday afternoon is eat birthday cake. Last week it was chef Ellie Langpohl's turn to bake a birthday cake and this time it was for Marie Dennie who they call their "treasure". I'm told that a good time was had by all with lots of laughs. While all this was going on however some of them did manage to play a few hands of bid euchre. Bill Menard was one and he came in first, Walter Ackerblade second and Ken Young third. Jack Chilton had the hidden score while "treasure" Dennie managed a moonshot through mouthsful of cake. Also producing moonshots were Bev Johnson and Norm Lee. They meet for cards and cake every Tuesday at 1:30 p.m.

Last week Ken Young led the pack of bid euchre players at the Stanhope Firefighters Hall with a 306 followed up by Pat Scadden with 279, Helen Lee 273, Brian Henderson 269, Lottie Ruttan 248 and Helen Henderson 232. As a group, they produced 5 moonshots. Join the fun every Wednesday at 7:00 p.m.

Results of the euchre games played at the Minden Legion on Thursday November 14 at 7:15 p.m. were: most lone hands - Grace Dixon and Ida Young; high scores - Murray MacKinnon and Ken Young; low scores - Jack Chilton and Helen Skelding; "other" prizes - Al Cooper, Jim Irwin and Ellie Langpohl

Minden W.I. November meeting

The November 20 meeting of the Minden Women's Institute was held at the Terrace with President Jean Cox welcoming us all. The Roll Call of "when is a bargain not a bargain" was answered by 15 members and four guests were welcomed. There was a brief report on the History Workshop at Lindsay board room on October 30 with five members attending.

Jean Cox, as delegate to the area convention, gave an excellent report and made a refund. On the tickets sold at our last meeting for this convention, Maud Coulter won third prize of $50. There were many more details reported to us and East Victoria District had 100% of delegates.

Irene Moore reported sending 17 cards since the last meeting and collections for card fund and Pennies for Friendship were taken. Members please note that Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario will have a special event during 1997, their centennial year, and also 1997 is Minden's 90th year as well.

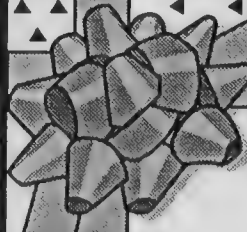

Next meeting will be a pot luck at noon on December 18 at the Minden United Church. The meeting will include a gift exchange (not over $2) and we are sending $50 for the gift baskets through the Leonards.

Speaker of the day was introduced by Irene Moore. Marvella Smith is coordinator for the museum and she reminded us that our early memories have history in them. She provided details of events at the museum over the past year, donated articles, lists on the computer, naming of artifacts and inventory. She also noted there a ramp has been installed at the Bank (museum) Building thanks to donations received from the Legion, Lions and Rotary clubs. We were also told that we may have another house on site. Also, a rug hooking and quilt show is coming next July at which we may volunteer.

After the meeting, Irene was a capable auctioneer on the items brought in and everyone enjoyed a jolly good time, followed by a tasty snack.
